

The Ultimate Parents' Guide to Bangalore

For parents of little ones aged 0–10

CITY GUIDE NOTE

A note from me to you

Hello, lovely parents!

This guide started with a small wish of mine: more mornings in the park, and fewer evenings with our faces lit up by screens. I know how tempting the tablet is after a long day (I've been there more times than I can count), but every time we step outside, my little one comes home happier, muddier and full of questions.

Bangalore is generous to children. We have shady lawns, lakes full of birds, small museums, story corners and big-hearted play spaces. You don't need a grand plan. Pick one place from these pages, pack water and a snack, and just go.

Let them climb, run, get a little dirty and wonder out loud. Those are the days they will remember.

See you outdoors,
@alphabetamumma

OUR PROMISE

Not sponsored, not biased

No place in this guide paid to be included, and there are no affiliate links. Every listing shows what parents love and a heads-up, so you get the full picture.

ACCURACY NOTE

Checked on 22–23 October 2026

Every rating, review count, price and link in this guide was checked against a real source on 22–23 October 2026: Google Maps listings, official websites and booking pages, and named news or review sites. Where we could not confirm a price, the card says "Price not confirmed, check before visiting" rather than guessing.

Timings, prices and rules change often, especially around holidays and the monsoon. Please check the official website or call before you go. Ratings and review counts are a snapshot from that date. Review summaries reflect the reviews we checked, not every review.

Public parks: we found no official source confirming that entry is free, so park cards say "Price not confirmed" rather than FREE. FREE is shown only where an official or named source says so.

Drive times for farms and weekend getaways are free-flow road estimates from Vidhana Soudha (OpenStreetMap routing), so allow extra time for traffic.

How to use this guide

The city is split into five zones: Central, North, East, South and West, each with neighbourhoods. Find your area in the index, tap a name, and you'll jump straight to its card. After the zones come Animal Farms & Petting Zoos near the city and Weekend Getaways; at the back you'll find a rainy-day list, seasonal events and emergency numbers.

FREE means no entry fee Price not confirmed, check before visiting means we couldn't verify it

- Google rating – average star rating and number of reviews on Google Maps, 22–23 Oct 2026
- Our suggested age – our editorial suggestion, not a rule set by the venue
- Pram friendly – Google lists a step-free / wheelchair-accessible entrance
- Baby care – a baby-care, changing or nursing room was confirmed
- Parking – accessible parking listed on Google
- Best time – when to go, from official info or visitor patterns
- Rainy-day pick – indoor, good for the monsoon
- Outdoor – best on dry days
- Open in Google Maps – tap to open the exact listing
- Website / Book – official website or booking page (link checked)
